Beaconsfield is a town in the English county of Berkshire. It is located about 10 miles west of London and is known for its historic buildings, including Beaconsfield House, a former residence of the Duke of Wellington.

The town has a long history, with evidence of Roman occupation found in the area.

Beaconsfield is also home to the Beaconsfield Cricket Club, which has been playing since 1830.

The town is also known for its annual Beaconsfield Flower Show, held in June each year.
